Designed by Thomas Lincoln, New Lincoln Gothic is an elegant sanserif, generous in width and x-height. There are twelve weights ranging from Hairline to UltraBold and an italic for each weight. At the stroke ends are gentle flares, and some of the round characters possess an interesting and distinctive asymmetry. The character set supports Central Europe, and includes three figure sets, an extended set of fractions, superior and inferior numbers, and a few alternates, all accessible via OpenType features.
